

CAT 2025

MBARRAPID FIRE

Lecture- 02

Verbal Ability

Para-jumbles

Vikrant Kathuria Sir

TOPICS to be covered

1. Para - Jumbles Sprint

Para-jumbles

Scientific Approach to Para-jumbles

- Read all the sentences actively ↗ look for the clues
- Avoid the temptation of looking for the opening sentence
- Identify sequences and mandatory pairs using word-based and idea-based clues.
- Use the elimination approach to arrive at the answer for MCQs
- Use the selection approach for the non-MCQs.

Word-based Clues

- 'The'
- Noun – Pronoun Relationship
- Transitional Expressions
- Chronological Sequence
 - Dates / months / years
 - Before, After, After that, Later, Then
- Abbreviations and Acronyms
- Full Name and Part of the Name

IIM

Idea-based Clues

Comprehension

- Teaching → Exams
- Exams → Results
- Factory → Production
- Profit → Bonus

$2 \rightarrow 4$

Question 1

 $5 \rightarrow 3$ $1+5$ 24153

Horrific instances

1. When councils fail in their duties, the repercussions can be dreadful.
2. For over forty years, local councils have been responsible for taking wholesome care at the last resort for those most susceptible to slipping through the cracks.
3. So, when a Conservative former children's minister, Tim Loughton, forewarns that very soon we would see headlines that reflect the tragic cases of the past, we need to take notice.
4. Unguarded children at risk of neglect or abuse, aged people who can't spend on care, adults with physical and mental disabilities, the homeless: all rely on local, rather than central, government for support.
5. Who can fail to recall Baby P, the toddler who, among other bruises, suffered a broken back, a collapsed jawbone and a punctured ear before he died at the hands of his nurses in 2007 or Victoria Climbié, subject to months of cruelty then murder in 2000?

Relaxing
Pee

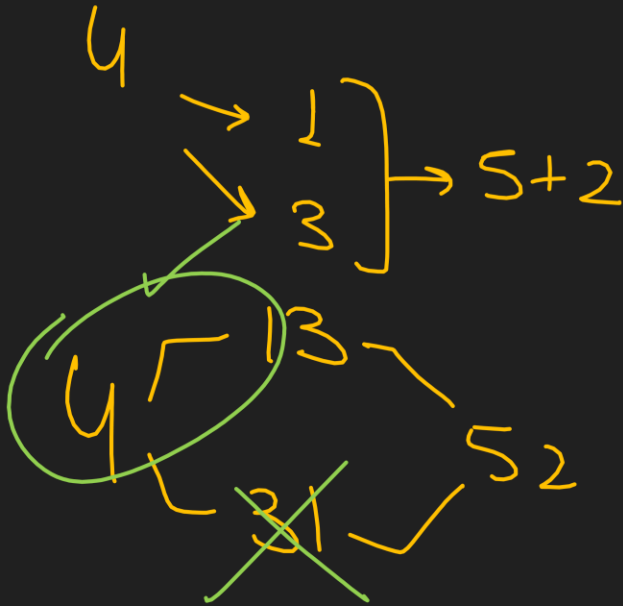

Question 2

 $2+4$ $\rightarrow 3+1$ 2431

1. Group decision-making, however, does not necessarily fully guard against arbitrariness and anarchy, for individual capriciousness can get substituted by collusion of group members.
2. Nature itself is an intricate system of checks and balances, meant to preserve the delicate balance between various environmental factors that affect our ecology.
3. In institutions also, there is a need to have in place a system of checks and balances which inhibits the concentration of power in the hands of only some individuals.
4. When human interventions alter this delicate balance, the outcomes have been seen to be disastrous.

4 13 52

Question 3

1. The narrative behind her success may be that of the penalties her adversary was awarded.
2. When they fought at Arthur Ashe stadium, for only the second time ever, Osaka did not fall all over Serena and reminded herself again and again that, "It is just another match with just another tennis player."
3. The story may be that of how tennis' current Queen was denied her 24th Major title, dispossessing New York of its everlasting dream yet again.
4. It is quite likely that Naomi Osaka's 6-3, 6-1 triumph over Serena Williams at the U.S. Open would be recalled and cherished more for what she didn't do, than what she did.
5. What happened in the tennis court was in one way disdainful yet, there was a silver lining in a 20-year-old Osaka becoming the first player ever from Japan to hold a Grand Slam title aloft.

Question 4

$$1 + 5 + 3$$

$$\rightarrow 4 + 2$$

$$153 / 42$$

$$(42) / 153$$

1. Mridula Harihar's fascination with old glass bottles began when she was in class 10; seeing her spend over 30 hours on a non-academic project in KFI, her parents took her to Anjali Venkat, the glass artist.
2. Implements used for cutting, plyers, electric furnace are imported from the US, and massive investment is needed to set up a workshop, if we want to bring about the change in the situation.
3. "I have been trying to harness glass for over a decade, and after completing my Master's in Habitat Policy and Practice at TISS, I started Full Fuse in 2015, wherein I attempt to evolve a variety of art, jewelry and other pieces of home décor using waste (bottles)," says Mridula who has been aware about sustainability right from the origin of this scheme.
4. Despite using glass conventionally to make glass bangles for many years, still, the idea of glass art is nascent in our country.
5. From there, her exciting journey commenced as she worked under the the latter's tutelage for 10 years.

4 → 1 + 2 → 3

Question 5

4123

1. "Yet there is no conversation about how they are feeling, what support they need, if they are willing and able to help, how their workload will be adjusted accordingly and how they will be recognised" says Daniels.
2. Daniels also says that line managers have told people of colour (POC) to be "on call" to answer any questions about Black Lives Matter and help in whatever way they can.
3. Clearly, Organisations are metaphorically clicking their fingers and expecting POC to come running.
4. It's not just the expectation to take on more projects, however – it's an ongoing ask.

2134

Question 6

1. He had applied to join a new school district, for instance, only to have all his forms and documents returned.
2. Working as a teacher in Canada the 1940s, Peter had been puzzled by the inept behaviour of his equals and superiors
3. There was nothing wrong with the application – rather, the Department of Education told him that they could not accept the package since it had not been registered at the Post Office for safe delivery, despite the fact that it had, of course, already arrived safely.
4. How could someone stupid enough to create that rule have found a place in the Department of Education?

Question 7

1. ^{However} The term 'text', in this respect, does not refer simply to a written form of communication, however.
2. Rather, texts are something we all produce and reproduce constantly in our everyday social relations, be they spoken, written or embedded in the construction of material artifacts.
3. In its simplest formulation, deconstruction can be taken to refer to a methodological strategy which seeks to uncover layers of hidden meaning in a text that have been denied or suppressed.
4. While being extremely complex, Derrida's work has proven to be a particularly influential approach to the analysis of the ways in which language structures our understanding of ourselves and the world we inhabit, an approach he termed deconstruction.

4 → 1 + 3 + 5

Question 8

4 1 3 5 2

1. Each year, millions of couples join together in love and then painfully separate because they have lost that loving feeling.
2. Indeed, very few people are able to grow in love; it does happen but is not common.
3. Out of those who stay together possibly another 50 percent are not fulfilled.
4. Each year, millions of individuals are searching for a partner to experience that special loving feeling.
5. They stay together out of loyalty and obligation or from the fear of starting over.

$$3 + 1 + 4 + 2 = 10$$

Question 9

1. Its virtues are undeniable; it is stoutly industrious and inquisitive, and, in the corraling of evidence, Vigarello shows such dedication that he should seriously consider moonlighting as a homicide detective.
2. The only problem is that Vigarello's piling up of information becomes too much to absorb, and he's so frantically busy thinking everything through, as it were, that he neglects to pause for thought.
3. Zonked, bushed, or just plain hebetudinous, most readers will be glad to get to the end of "A History of Fatigue."
4. Any corpse would give its eyeteeth to have him on the case.

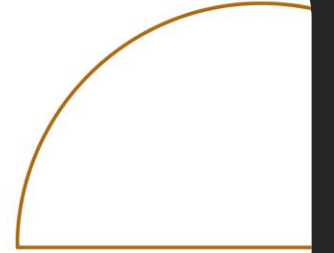

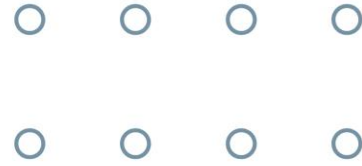

Question 10

2 → 3

2 + 4 → 1 + 3

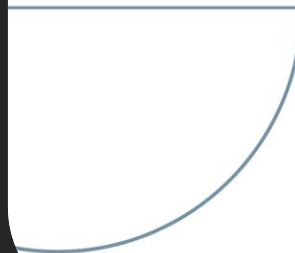

2413

1. There are no clear-cut, ironclad rules, says Bader, now at McGill University in Montreal, Canada: "We don't necessarily have one unified field standard for ethics."
2. Consent takes on new meaning when participants are no longer around to make their voices heard, Bader and colleagues write.
3. Take, for example, research at Pueblo Bonito – a massive stone great house in Chaco Canyon in New Mexico, where a community thrived from 828 to 1126 AD under the rule of ancestral Puebloan peoples – that eventually sparked fierce ethical discussions.
4. Scientists instead must regulate themselves and navigate the sometimes-contradictory guidelines – some of which prioritise research outcomes; others, the wishes of descendants, even very distant ones, and local communities.

I HEAR YOUR INSULTS AND PLAN TO SILENCE THEM WITH MY VICTORY.

CLAUDIA GRAY

THANK
You

